

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

March 12, 2015

Dear Mr. David Powell,

On behalf of Loyola Blakefield and its Cyber Science program, we would like to extend our gratitude for the recent grant provided to us by the Mid-Atlantic CIO Forum. Our program, which started with just a handful of students interested in exploring Cyber Security, has blossomed into a robust co-curricular activity that now attracts dozens of students from both the middle and high school levels.

In addition to exploring the technical skills associated with Cyber Science, we are also enforcing the ethics and morality that needs to be considered in today's digital world. We believe that there is no better place to teach this topic than in a Jesuit school.

In addition to some tremendous success in state, regional and national competitions, our students are gaining industry-caliber skills and certifications, and some have earned internship opportunities that have never been offered to high school students.

We are very proud of the growth of our Cyber Science program and pleased to have your support so that we can enhance our offerings and ensure that more of our students have access to this increasingly important area of interest.

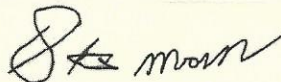

In the coming months, we'll be dedicating ourselves to exploring how Cyber Science will play a role in our curriculum going forward and we are excited about what this means for our current and future students. Thank you for your commitment to our mission and the investment that you have made in our program.

We hope to be able to share our success stories with you as we grow and continue to lead the way in the area of Cyber Science education and responsible digital citizenship.

With Gratitude,

Anthony I. Day
